Romans Lexicon
I am so excited to jump back into Romans this Sunday! The last sermon I preached in this series was on November 16: “Just and Justifier” from Romans 3:22-26. Since then, Pastor Jim has preached a couple of sermons; I have preached two mini-series ( Precious Promises and For the Church ); and we had ice cancel our wonderful missionary guest preacher last Sunday. Returning where we left off, we pick up from the opening chapters of Romans, which are among the heaviest in Scripture, not necessarily because of their dense theology, but because of their sustained insistence that no one is righteous. From 1:18 through 3:20, we were bombarded week after week with the same theme: due to our failure to perform good works, we stand unrighteous before God. Into this dark and gloomy pit an explosion of light burst forth in 3:21-29, and that is where we ended in the fall: rejoicing and resting in our great salvation by grace alone, through faith alone, in Christ alone. As we return to this mighty epistle today, here are some of the words we grew familiar with last year but may need to dust off again this spring.
The Gospel (1:1, 9, 15, 16). Central to Paul’s purpose in writing this letter is to clearly articulate the gospel. The word appears four times in the opening section, nowhere more important than in his thesis statement : v16-17. Here we learn that the gospel is the power for salvation for everyone who believes. Believe in Jesus, and you will be counted righteous.
Jew and Gentile/Greek (1:16; 2:10; 3:9). The church in Rome was made up of these two groups, and there appears to be some tension between them. Paul labors to show that they are in the same position before God: devoid of righteousness. The Gentiles (1:18-32) and the Jews (2:1-3:8) are both “under sin” (3:9).
The Righteousness of God (1:17; 3:21, 22, 25, 26). Key to understanding this phrase is recognizing which meaning Paul is using in which verses. At times he uses the phrase to denote the gift of righteousness that comes from God (3:21, 22). Since no one is righteous, we can only stand before God if we receive his righteousness as a gift. For this reason, we call it an “alien” righteousness: it comes from outside of us ( extra nos in Latin) The second way Paul uses this phrase is to refer to the attribute of righteousness (3:25, 26), that is to say, God is right and holy in his character and all his actions, and will not allow sin to go unpunished.
Partiality (2:11). Since God is righteous (in his attributes), he judges righteously, showing no favoritism to the Jews. Works are the only basis of judgment, and they must be perfect.
Justified (3:20, 24, 26). To justify someone is to declare that they are righteous. The impartial God cannot declare us righteous based upon our good works, since we have none! But by his grace he counts the righteousness of Christ to us, thus justifying us.
Faith (1:16, 17; 3:22, 25, 26). How do we receive Christ in order to be justified? We believe. Faith is the instrument by which we receive Christ. Salvation is all of faith: from faith, for faith, by faith.
Redemption (3:24). Ransom by the payment of a price. Sinners are set free from the prison house of sin because the ransom price has been paid. What is this ransom price? Nothing but the blood of Jesus.
Propitiation (3:25). The turning away of wrath. God’s wrath against sinners is turned away by the blood sacrifice of Jesus. We call his sacrifice a “propitiatory” offering because it turned away the wrath of God. In order words, Jesus satisfied God’s wrath upon the cross, such that none is left for his children.
